Arc Duo

Heather Holden, flute and Bradley Colten, guitar

Hailed as "a perfect ensemble" by New York Concert Review, Arc Duo is a recipient of Artists International's 2003 'Chamber Music Award', and 2005 'Outstanding Alumni Winners Award'. Arc Duo has worked with and received high praise from some of the leading artists of today such as Ned Rorem, Joan Tower, Paula Robison, David Starobin, Linda Chesis, and David Leisner. Dedicated to music of the 20th and 21st centuries, in 2004 Arc Duo launched their 'Commissioning Project'. Since then, the Duo has consistently introduced virtuosic, new repertoire for the ensemble-type to audiences. Arc Duo has debuted works by Judah Adashi, David Leisner, Duncan Neilson, and Shafer Mahoney.

Duo Maresienne

The viola da gamba playing of Carol Lewis has been called "quick-speaking, prismatic, sweet-sounding" (The Boston Globe). She has given solo recitals throughout the U.S. and abroad. She has toured North America, Europe, Asia and the Middle East with the acclaimed ensembles Hesperion, Capriccio Stravagante and the Boston Camerata. Olav Chris Henriksen has been acclaimed across Europe and North America as a soloist on lute, theorbo, and early guitars. Mr. Henriksen tours nationally and internationally with leading ensembles such as the Handel & Haydn Society, Mark Morris Dance Company, Boston Baroque, Tafelmusik Baroque Orchestra, Boston Camerata and others.

Thea Lobo & Daniel Acsadi

Since ancient times, the solo voice and guitar-like instruments have always been together. Mezzo-soprano Thea Lobo and classical guitarist Daniel Acsadi carry on this classic duo tradition with a beautiful repertoire of songs. Step back in time when kings, queens and courtiers were enchanted by a beautiful solo voice supported by a guitarist playing intricate harmonic lines.

Through his acclaimed performances, arrangements, and teaching, Dan Acsadi is a passionate advocate for both the guitar and the music of his native Hungary. Dan's arrangements encompass art and folk music of the 18th through 21st centuries, innovatively expanding the guitar's repertoire. He is firmly committed to the guitar as a versatile chamber music instrument, performing regularly with voice, viola, violin, flute, string quartet, and guitar ensemble. Beginning his musical studies at age six, Dan earned his M.M. from New England Conservatory (NEC) and B.A. from Cornell University, where he double majored in music and economics. He is currently pursuing the Doctor of Musical Arts degree at NEC with Eliot Fisk. Dan has previously studied with Pablo Cohen and John Hall, and has performed in the masterclasses of Manuel Barrueco, Leo Brouwer, Eduardo Fernandez, and Adam Holzman. Dan maintains a large and diverse teaching studio in the Boston area.

Mezzo-soprano Thea Lobo is rapidly being recognized as a highly musical and flexible soloist and ensemble singer. As a freelancer in Boston, she has been praised for her performances of everything from Dowland to Rossini to Weill to Stravinsky and beyond. She has worked closely with conductors Stephen Stubbs, Daniel Moe, Jane Ring Frank, Frank Nemhauser, and Simon Carrington among others, and her professional ensemble experience includes performances with Boston Secession, Vox Consort, Symposium Singers, Exsultemus, Carnegie Hall Festival Chorus, and Boston Baroque.

Berit Strong has performed in hundreds of concerts and has received many invitations to return. Reviewers consistently praise her ability to communicate musically with her audience by playing with emotional intensity, musical artistry and virtuoso technique. Richard Dyer of The Boston Globe wrote, "Berit Strong was a colorful and commanding interpreter." Soundboard Magazine praises Ms. Strong's playing in this way: "She brought to the performance a level of personal emotional commitment that made the ebb and flow of musical tension very effective. Miss Strong displayed an intense and original musical personality with an outgoing and communicative stage presence."

Jérôme Mouffe is a brilliant guitarist from Belgium who has dazzled international audiences in various countries, including Spain, France, Italy, Austria, Germany, and the United States. He has studied at the Royal Conservatory of Brussels and at the Mozarteum University of Salzburg. In 2007 he won the 2nd prize at the Boston GuitarFest international competition. Jérôme's repertoire ranges from the Renaissance to the 20th century music. His current focus for concert presentation and his upcoming CD is 19th Century Italian composers. He is now undertaking a Doctorate degree in Musical Arts at the New England Conservatory, under the direction of Eliot Fisk.

He has performed with numerous ensembles including Alea III, the Spectrum Singers, the Mastersingers and Counterpoint. He has worked closely with many composers to produce new solo and chamber works for the guitar, and has premiered works by Daniel Pinkham, Scott Wheeler, Roger Zahab and John Appleton, to name a few. A graduate of The New England Conservatory, John has studied with Robert P. Sullivan, Frederic Hand and Oscar Ghiglia.

Mark Small has released six CDs of sacred and classical guitar music and received three nominations for Pearl Awards. Small has composed classical, jazz, pop, and sacred music for chorus, wind ensemble, orchestra, piano, and guitar. Small has published several other titles with Mel Bay Publications and written a book for Berklee Press. Small holds bachelor's and master's degrees in classical guitar performance from New England Conservatory and California State University, Fullerton.

Robert Paul Sullivan is an accomplished musician performing solos, chamber, and orchestral capacities in the New England region, as well as other parts of the country and in Europe. His performances have included the Boston Symphony Orchestra, most recently the opening Gala concert of Mahler's Symphony No. 8 with conductor James Levine in Boston and New York; Boston Celebrity Series; Alea III; New Hampshire Symphony Orchestra; Rhode Island Symphony Orchestra; Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra; Boston Ballet; Boston Opera Company; Musica Viva, and others. During the summer season, Sullivan is a conductor for the American Mandolin and Guitar Summer School.

José Manuel Lezcano has captivated audiences on four continents. His programs featuring both classical and Andean music have taken him as recitalist, collaborative musician, and concerto soloist from Carnegie Recital Hall in New York City to major venues and festivals in Ecuador, Colombia, Peru, Brazil, China, the Czech Republic and Germany. Born in Havana, Cuba in 1960, Lezcano was invited to join the faculty of Keene State College in New Hampshire in 1991.

Jennifer Yeaton-Parris received a B.A. in music history and a B.M. in flute from the University of New Hampshire, summa cum laude. She received her master's in music in performance from Boston University. Yeaton-Parris has performed with the New Hampshire Music Festival, Granite State Orchestra, the Concord and Manchester choral societies, and others. She is an active freelance flutist in the New Hampshire area and has been a flute instructor at Cornell and the University of New Hampshire.

A native of St. Petersburg, Russia, guitarist Grigory Goryachev has been acclaimed the world over for his blinding virtuosity and extraordinary musical sensitivity. As a master of both flamenco and classical styles, he has created a new genre all his own and garnered praise from such guitar luminaries as Paco de Lucía, Christopher Parkening, and Eliot Fisk.

Born in the province of Vera Cruz, Mexico, Zaira Meneses began musical studies at the age of 7. She soon revealed an extraordinary double talent as singer and guitarist, and during her years of guitar study, she was the recipient of numerous prizes for guitar performances both nationally and internationally. She has distinguished herself not only as a soloist, but also as a founding member of the Orquesta de Guitarras of Xalapa with which she has toured throughout Mexico and abroad under the Baton of the legendary Alfonso Moreno.

A highly-respected concert artist in the field of guitar and mandolin music for more than three decades, Mark Davis appears on many CD recordings, including the Grammy-nominated 'Vienna Nocturne.' Mark Davis is the music director of the Providence Mandolin Orchestra, and directs a classical guitar program at the Wheeler School in Providence, Rhode Island. Beverly Davis has performed on the classical guitar for over two decades, and as a member of the Providence Mandolin Orchestra has appeared in concerts in Germany, France, Luxembourg, Canada, and throughout the U.S. Mark and Beverly Davis have performed together as a guitar duo since 2001, appearing in concerts in New England, Canada, Germany and Portugal.
